Board hopes for $1 million project

BMR to conduct study for Bayou Cadet marina

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors Thursday approved a feasibility study and filing of pre-application documents for a federal grant to develop a commercial harbor at Bayou Cadet.

The feasibility study will be paid for by a $13,500 Coastal Zone Management grant from the Mississippi Wildlife Conservation Commission and will be conducted by the Bureau of Marine Resources.

According to Jerry Mitchell, chief of the BMR's coastal programs division, the study will begin about Sept. 31 and should be completed by Dec. 31.

No match monies are required for the study, Mitchell told the supervisors.

The agreement between the supervisors and BMR calls for joint oversight of the project by the BMR director and the president of the Board of Supervisors.

BMR officials will be responsible for routine management of the study, review of preliminary reports and payment of costs.

The agreement calls for the supervisors to organize and serve on all necessary committees needed to complete the study.

Study activities will include:

—Topographic surveys.

—Hydrologic studies to determine characteristics of drainage.

—Soil borings and evaluation of dredged material.

—Water quality studies, in consultation with the Bureau of Pollution Control and the Environmental Protection Agency.

—Archeological surveys for sites, in consultation with the Department of Archives and History.

—Base maps and aerial photography.

—Determination of wetlands jurisdiction, in consultation with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

—Wetlands jurisdiction mapping.

—Engineering schematics, material quantities and cost estimates.

—Flood hazards and evacuation analysis.

—Analysis of nearshore water currents and related land buildups or erosion.

According to Mitchell, recent studies show that 3,000 additional boat slips will be needed along the Coast within the next 20 years.

"We need to look at a number of problems," he said during discussions about Bayou Cadet.

"We feel there are some water quality problems and the environmental concerns need to be addressed."

"As you know," Mitchell noted,

Car hits boat, two injured

By DENA BISNETTE

Two people were injured on Hwy. 603 Friday when a car collided with a boat on the Bayou LaCroix Bridge shortly after 8 p.m.

State Trooper Tony Greer, who investigated the accident for the Mississippi Highway Patrol, said a southbound pickup truck was towing a 19 foot fiberglass skiff, when the trailer apparently went out of control, swinging the boat into the northbound lane.

An oncoming car, driven by Denise Young of New Orleans, collided with the boat. Her two passengers, Allen Young of New Orleans and Anna Dicarilo of Diamondhead, were injured and were taken to Hancock General Hospital, Greer said.

The driver of the pickup, Josh B. Jones of Gretna, La., was not injured and was charged with failure to yield, Greer said.

The boat and trailer were demolished and the car was damaged.

"In 20 years, this is the first accident I've seen like this," Greer commented.

The new unit's features are explained by Harry Sampley, left, Southern Fire Equipment representative, to Firefighter Rodney Aguzin; Herb Gardner, president of Diamondhead's Volunteer Fire Department; and Firefighter Richard Pate. Mrs. Sylvia Ross, treasurer, said some $63,200. was raised by the Volunteer Fire Department and ladies auxiliary to purchase the new truck. Ed Friloux, Diamondhead Fire Department administrator, said the department now has two pumpers, one rescue unit, and one tanker. The new truck will be available for public viewing all day today, according to Gardner. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Supervisors agree to limit bond issue to new jail only

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors agreed Thursday to try for a new jail in November and postpone expansion of the courthouse or construction of a new courthouse to a later date.

"I say we go along with the recommendations of the jail committee," Board President A.A. Kellar told the other supervisors.

"We picked the committee members."

"Each of us had two or three appointees."

"If we try for a courthouse and the issue fails, they'll point a finger at the board."

Jail Committee Chairman Terrence

had considered the matter of a courthouse crowding but decided that issue should not be included in a November bond issue.

"If a referendum passes and the jail is built, the courthouse can be expanded later," Feeney said.

Feeney also said his committee recommended adding a sentence to the ballot noting that the issue concerns a new jail for the county.

Many people did not understand the term "criminal justice facility," he said.

"You might as well get it down on the same deal or you won't get it done at all," suggested Supervisor James

Travira, expressing concern about the Feeney reported that his committee need for more courthouse space.

"I feel we should build the jail across the street," Supervisor Sam Pernicaro said.

"Then after the new jail is built we can improve the old jail for courthouse use."

Board Attorney Walter Gex III said he had been asked whether the ballot could include a question asking if voters favored putting a new jail in its current site or at a new location.

He said he would research the possibility of including such a proposition on the ballot.

"The board would certainly not have to follow the results," he said, "but it would be indicative of how people felt and the board could act accordingly."

Aldermen approve park use request

By DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Board of Aldermen approved a request Wednesday for the use of Herlihy Street Park and surrounding streets for a back-to-school picnic and fun run Sept. 1.

The request was made by Clarence Harris, who said the event is a community project for local children and is being arranged by several individuals.

Harris also requested police officers to help control traffic on the streets to be used for the race and asked that a city official be present to act as starter if possible.

The board also approved a request from Dorothy Sutton for permission to continue beautification work at city hall. She also submitted an account of the project, which showed that all costs except $36 have been paid through donations. The remaining $36 will be paid by the city.

In other business, the board voted to join the Mississippi Natural Gas Association and to pay $75 in annual dues; approved the purchase of a $30 advertisement from the Bay High School Band; and set the rededication of the Waveland Civic Center for the first week of October.

Bay man shoots self while cleaning weapon

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT

A Bay St. Louis resident was admitted to Hancock General Hospital Thursday after accidentally shooting himself, Bay St. Louis Police Department Investigator Joe Pica reported Friday.

Pica said William Ladner, 50, of 773 Webb St., Bay St. Louis, was wounded in the right side of his chest while he was trying to clean a gun that he did not know was loaded.

The accident happened about 10:40

a.m. at Ladner's home, Pica said.

Following an investigation by Pica and Bay Police Department Chief Investigator Murray Ladner it was determined there was no foul play involved, Pica said.

According to Mary Perkins, director of community relations for the hospital, Ladner was in "good condition" Friday morning.

"He will probably be released Friday or over the weekend," she said.

Two Injured in wreck

Two people were injured about 3:30 p.m. Friday when a vehicle ran off Interstate-10 about nine miles west of Diamondhead and hit a parked car.

According to Tony Greer, Mississippi State Trooper, a 1981 Honda driven by Gary E. Vestal of Long Beach ran off the edge of the eastbound lane of I-10 and hit a 1979 Celica occupied by Terry L. Kent of Harvey, La., and Louise Falgost of Westwego, La.

The Celica was parked on the shoulder of the highway between the seven and eight mile markers when the accident occurred, according to Trooper Greer, who investigated the wreck.

Ms. Falgost was taken to a Slidell hospital by Mobile Medic, while Vestal was taken to Hancock General Hospital. Ms. Kent was not injured, Greer said.

Unemployment falls in Hancock County

By DENA BISNETTE

Unemployment dropped slightly in Hancock County last month, according to statistics supplied by the Mississippi Employment Security Commission.

The July unemployment rate for the county was 9.3 percent, a tenth of a percent lower than the June rate of 9.4 percent.

The change resulted from an increase of 30 people in the county's work force, an increase of 40 people among the employed and a decrease of 10 unemployed.

The work force in July consisted of 9,660 people, including 8,760 employed and 900 unemployed.

Ann Ladner of the MESC office in Bay St. Louis reported that the drop last month could not be attributed to a specific cause. However, many of the people placed through the office during July now have similar jobs.

"We had a lot of people placed in fast-food restaurant jobs, which have more need for employees during the summer months. We also placed a few with companies like Mason-Chamberlain and in other types of work, but most placements last month were the students who went to the restaurants."

She said many of them were looking for summer work but some indicated that they expect to retain their jobs after school starts.

The unemployment rate is expected to remain the same or decrease slightly during August. The seasonal change in the work force that occurs when summer workers drop out of the labor force and return to school will not show in statistics until September, Mrs. Ladner added.

Hancock County was one of 59 of the state's 82 counties reporting decreased unemployment last month and remained below the state average. However, local unemployment continued to be higher than the national average.

The state average was 10.9 percent in July, an increase from the June rate of 10.6 percent. The July high was 23.4 percent in Montgomery County and the low was 5.8 percent in Rankin County.

The national unemployment rate in July was 7.5 percent.

"we're just one player in this whole regulatory game."

"And there's a concern about costs. This will take some major activity and we need to see how much money we're talking about."

"But this study will initially get us started as we look toward total development."

The federal grant is a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development which would be matched by the county by $500,000 in industrial revenue bonds.

Discussions are centering around construction of a marina similar to the one in Pass Christian, to be built out into the water.

The applications are being handled by Jeff Taylor of Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

Public hearings on both actions are scheduled at 6 p.m. Sept. 4.

Also Monday, the board accepted into its minutes but took no action on a resolution of the Hancock County Planning Commission recommending countywide building and zoning codes.

The planning commission's resolution states that the commission "finds uniform building codes and comprehensive zoning are necessary for the orderly development and growth of Hancock County."

It goes on to say the commission "feels such codes and zoning are favorable and supported by a great majority of the citizens of Hancock County."

The commission recommended the board, "if permitted by law to do so," place the question of adoption of building codes and comprehensive zoning on the ballot in the upcoming November election.

"This would let the people voice their opinion," Commission Attorney John Scafide said, noting that only people in unincorporated areas of the county would vote on the proposition.

Board Attorney Walter Gex III said he would research the law in regard to putting the issue on the ballot.

In another matter the supervisors declared an emergency situation to allow Sheriff Ronald Peterson to purchase two new cars for his department.

Peterson said two of his vehicles now have mileage readings of about 175,000 and 128,000 miles.

"We have two good cars now," he said.

"If we have four good cars we shouldn't have any problems."

"If we can get two now, we'll be in good shape," he said, adding that the car purchased through citizen donations about six months ago now has a mileage reading of only 16,000 miles.

Peterson said he had discussed the problem with Circuit Judge J. Rubie Griffin, and the judge had indicated he would allow payment for the cars to be made from the monies confiscated in an April drug bust in Pearlinton.

Those monies were turned over to the county with the stipulation that the principle could not be used without further judicial order.

There is sufficient interest accumulated from the special account to purchase one automobile, Peterson said.

Also Thursday, the supervisors accepted a $411,012 bid submitted by Douglas James Necaie of Crane Creek to provide a clay gravel base and then surface a 6.55-mile stretch of Firetower Road running from the Harrison County line to Hwy. 603.

Necaie said he expected to begin work on the project within the next 30 days.

In other business the supervisors: —Authorized the U.S. Department of the Army to install a surge gauge on the public beach at Clermont Harbor to measure water levels during storms.

—Agreed to repair the ceiling in the courthouse courtroom.

—Approved a Port and Harbor Commission resolution authorizing Demex International to use a 6,600-square-foot steel building on lot 8 at Port Bienville Industrial Park for the storage of dry oilfield drilling chemicals, with rental at $500 per month and provision for a 45-day cancellation notice.

—Approved a Port and Harbor Commission resolution awarding a $15,100 bid for a roof addition to the terminal building at Stennis International Airport to J. W. Puckett Inc. of Gulfport.

Commission Executive Director James C. DeBlanc advised the supervisors that Stanford Morse of Gulfport has been employed to represent the commission in defending a $9 million lawsuit filed against it last week by Curtis North America Inc. and Curtis W. Johnson.

Supervisor James Travirca asked his colleagues to contribute one load of gravel each to help alleviate the mud problems at the Farmers' Market at the Hancock County Fairgrounds.

Two plead guilty, in Circuit Court

In Hancock County Circuit Court Friday, Judge Kosta Vlahos accepted two guilty pleas.

Robert Mitchell, who is presently serving a seven-year burglary sentence, entered a guilty plea to a charge of escaping jail on March 11. Vlahos sentenced Mitchell to serve one year in jail, consecutive to his present sentence.

Robert Poyadou of Bay St. Louis pleaded guilty to forgery charges. Poyadou was ordered to make restitution in the amount of the check, $389, and pay court costs.

SESAME STREET

"Don't Eat the Pictures: 'Sesame Street' at the Metropolitan Museum of Art," the family special taped at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and telecast on ETV last November, will be rebroadcast at 7 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 2, on Mississippi ETV.

The program finds the gang accidentally locked in the museum overnight and left to get acquainted with its many wonders.

The special, which features five original songs and cameo appearances by James Mason, Fritz Weaver and Paul Dooley, aims not only to entertain but to show youngsters and their families how museums are links to the past, said producer Dudley Singer. An epilogue will urge families to discover the treasures to be found in their own local museums.

Ammunition Plant commander outlines Army's position on proposed plant site deer hunt

Aug. 23, 1984
Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

This is to clarify the Army's plans for an archery hunt for deer at the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant (MSAAP), beginning this October.

The Army controls 7,100 acres at MSAAP and intends to follow its long-standing tradition of active, multiple-use resource management including timber harvesting, habitat improvement through controlled burning, and hunting.

This tradition and policy is practiced very successfully throughout the Army. In most cases, participation in hunting programs at other contractor-operated installations is limited to the Army and Army-contractor employees and their families.

We, however, have decided to encourage the entire general public to participate and have announced these plans along with instructions on requesting a permit.

Other expressed concerns have centered around the claim that the deer are tame, a dispute over the validity of the March 1983 deer study, the issue of bow hunting, and the role of the MSAAP forester and wildlife manager.

It has been claimed the deer on the plant are completely tame, have been hand-fed for years, and that a hunt would be inappropriate. There is no evidence these claims are well-founded, nor can these statements be supported by any research conducted on the plant site.

The deer at MSAAP fend for themselves and are wild in every respect. The only assistance they have been given is the additional food made available by our controlled burning of the areas where the browse had grown out of reach.

This land has never been part of a national or state wildlife refuge. Overpopulation does not need to exist to justify a hunt; hunting is a legal, accepted practice in wildlife management and also provides recreation to sportsmen. However, a problem does exist with over-population of deer at MSAAP.

MSAAP and the Mississippi State Department of Wildlife Conservation have repeatedly stated that the March 1983 study did not count the deer.

The study was a health check of a sample of the deer population. The deer sampled all showed the same condition: long-term protein malnourishment resulting in small size, very low body weight and low fawn survival.

These conditions were not the result of a few weeks of flooding and crowding but due to years of insufficient diet because there was not enough food to support all of the deer, not just for a few weeks but for the deer's entire lives.

The number of deer present at the time of the study has nothing to do with the long-term health conditions found in the study. In fact, the worst flooding occurred in April after the study has been completed.

The study stated, "We are dealing with a deer herd in a very marginal condition" and "it is probable this herd will have a low fawn survival and continue in an extreme state of poor health unless there is extensive natural mortality due to disease outbreak or some form of regulated herd reduction is initiated."

The study was not conducted by the Army. An expert and impartial team of wildlife biologists from the Mississippi State Department of Wildlife Conservation and from the Mississippi State University (MSU), led by Professor Harry A. Jacobson of MSU's Department of Wildlife & Fisheries, conducted the health check. The Army and the State of Mississippi have complete confidence in the validity of the findings.

In August 1980, with no flooding present, the MSU Research Center at NSTL prepared the plant's Preliminary Forest and Wildlife Habitat Management Plan.

Dr. Carroll Perkins of MSU prepared the Wildlife Management portion of the plan based on his assessment at that time.

The plan states, "Under good protection and an increased food supply (as a result of prescribed burning), the deer population will increase rapidly. Within three years, by the hunting season of 1984, deer could approach the carrying capacity of the range. If a portion of the deer are not removed at this time they will become overcrowded, destroy a large portion of their range, become parasite and disease ridden, and many will die. Therefore, it is suggested that consideration be given to a controlled archery deer hunt in the fall of 1984 and each fall thereafter."

The plan was endorsed and signed by Dr. Wendell J. Lorio, director, MSU Research Center.

We have been conducting the controlled burning for two years and the deer population has increased as predicted.

All wildlife populations balance between what the food supply can support and what predators and disease remove.

Deer have adapted well to man's encroachment of their habitat, and with programs like controlled burning, have more food available, so there are now more deer than before.

Cougars, this region's principal natural predator of deer, like other large predators, do not adapt well to man's encroachment and are fewer in number than before. With fewer natural predators, the deer population has increased.

Deer are, in fact, quite territorial and do not simply migrate to other areas when the food gets scarce. Without replacing the predators or allowing hunting, the deer will continue to multiply until starvation and disease checks their numbers. We intend to prevent that by having the hunt.

Compared to starvation and disease, bow hunting serves a useful purpose in providing both recreation and venison, which are otherwise lost.

The choice to have an archery-only hunt is also based on the security considerations of the plant. This plant is a restricted area and allowing a number of people with firearms onto the installation is not acceptable to the Army from either a safety or security standpoint.

The allegation that our forester and wildlife manager has a vested interest in this issue is academic since it is my decision as the MSAAP commander to authorize a hunt, in line with Army policy and regulations in conjunction with a Cooperative Agreement for Fish and Wildlife Management on the plant.

That agreement was jointly sponsored and signed by the Army, the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation, and the United States Department of the Interior Fish and Wildlife Service. Our forester only recommends courses of action and implements my decisions.

As commander, I have the responsibility and intent to execute sound natural resource management practices on this plant in accordance with Army traditions, policies and directives as approved by the State of Mississippi and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Those interested in participating in our hunting program should send a request for an application and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Commander, Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, Attn: Security Department, Building S8301, P.O. Box 4000, Picayune, Ms 39466. Applications must be postmarked by Aug. 31, 1984.

"It is difficult to be civil to an individual who is leaning over your desk screaming," welfare worker explains

August 24, 1984

Dear Editor,

This is in reference to the letter printed in your paper on Aug. 19, 1984, criticizing the Welfare Department. It is time to show the other side.

Having worked as a food stamp eligibility worker for three years, I was recently forced to choose between my health and my job. I, therefore, resigned.

With a personal caseload of approximately 250 households, I would have to admit the majority of my clients were helpful and grateful for any assistance we could give them.

However, on numerous occasions an individual has come into the office with a hostile attitude.

We have been cursed for not putting them ahead of everyone else.

We have been threatened with bodily harm for not bending the rules for their case. We have been accused of being prejudiced by both blacks and whites, young and old.

We have been trained to be considerate to all clients without exception. However, it is very difficult to be civil to an individual who is leaning over your desk screaming.

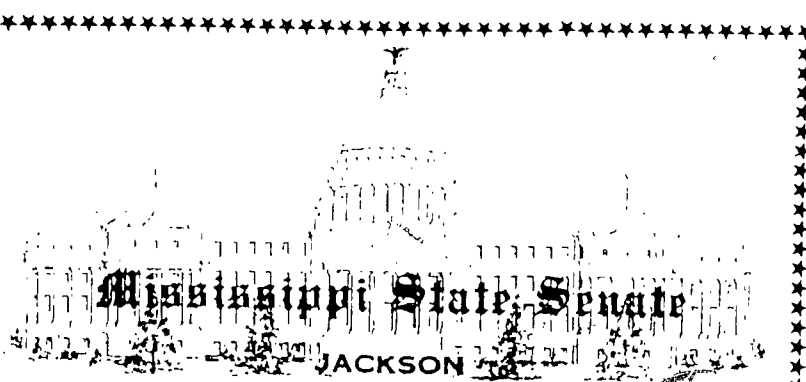

We are here to help, but we need cooperation and consideration to do our jobs efficiently. A bit of consideration and patience would help your worker do a better job for you.

Thank you for letting me voice my opinion.

BAYOU LACROIX ROAD DUMPING—Several areas on the Bayou LaCroix Road are again being used as garbage dumping grounds. This is part of the National Space Technological Laboratories Buffer Zone and dumping is illegal. Some of the residents of the area are complaining and it is also a disgrace to have funeral possessions pass these dumping areas on their way to the Bayou LaCroix Cemetery. The area has been cleaned several times by the government, and it appears another is needed. Too bad persons doing the illegal dumping are not caught and made to pay the consequences. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Senator Gene Taylor of Bay St. Louis is encouraging area citizens to take advantage of a new state law which will give them state tax credits for providing capital to create or expand Mississippi businesses, thereby helping the state's economic development.

The law, which passed during the 1984 Regular Session of the Legislature, allows for the designation of "Certified Mississippi capital companies" which are allowed to give their investors tax credits of up to 25 percent of their investment.

The capital put up by the investors can be loaned or used to purchase up to 40 percent ownership in a Mississippi business. If the money is loaned, the capital company is subject to the state's usury laws.

"Basically this program is to help provide funds for those ventures which cannot get a bank loan—ventures such as innovative services or new products. The risk to the investor is lowered by the tax break," said Senator Taylor, who represents Hancock, Harrison and Jackson Counties.

He said that a group of citizens may form a corporation and when $200,000 in investment capital is acquired apply to the Mississippi Board of Economic Development for designation as a "Certified Mississippi capital company."

Application for incorporation is made through the Secretary of State's office.

The Board of Economic Development will begin designating capital companies Jan. 1, 1985 and will do so every three months until Sept. 1, 1990.

The law sets up a schedule of investments for the qualified companies

THE ISSUE OF HAZARDOUS WASTE

While most of the state's attention has been focused on the effort to keep a nuclear waste site out of Mississippi, another environmental problem has been slowly rising to the surface. Nuclear waste, it seems, isn't the only hazardous waste which needs treatment and safekeeping; there is also chemical wastes.

While the question of burying the nuclear wastes in the salt domes of South Mississippi has been burning, the nation's largest private sector hazardous waste treatment firm has been seeking a state permit to locate a waste treatment site in Noxubee County, Mississippi. And residents of the area are offering loud and stiff resistance. Now the state is saying it may take five years to reach a decision about a permit.

Regardless of the outcome of this Noxubee County question, Mississippians need to be aware of these facts:

1. Mississippi is generating at least 1.9 million tons of hazardous waste materials each year from farms, factories, and other sources.

2. Hazardous waste materials are being produced in at least 72 of the state's 82 counties according to a 1981 survey.

3. Mississippi has no commercial hazardous waste treatment site in operation anywhere in the state. Most of Mississippi's hazardous waste materials are being transported to Alabama.

4. And, generators of hazardous waste materials in Arkansas and Louisiana are transporting such materials across Mississippi to the Alabama treatment site.

The Mississippi Economic Council has made its own study of hazardous waste treatment and the obvious conclusion is clear. If Mississippi is going to enjoy any significant economic advancement, Mississippians are going to have to accept the fact that there must be hazardous (not nuclear) waste treatment and disposal facilities located in Mississippi.

Late Friday evening we saw a large bird in the water near deMontluzin Avenue that looked like a white pelican.

We have seen flocks of white pelicans in recent years when they were passing through the area.

Friday night in a conversation with Joseph Kern, we were talking about how plentiful the brown pelicans were in Hancock County not too many years ago.

The pelicans were all over the place, and since the State of Louisiana has been restocking the browns, we have seen several of them at the mouth of Pearl River.

It sure would be good to see pelicans flying in the Bay and darting into the water for fish.

We are still getting reports from persons who attended the 'Salute to Hancock County Day' at the World's Exposition in New Orleans last Monday.

Everyone is talking about the great time they had at the fair and their plans for returning before it ends in November.

Maybe we should think about a second Hancock County Day at the Fair for those who were unable to attend last Monday.

Change of command scheduled at NORDA

Captain Roger P. Onorati, a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and a 1961 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, has been named to command the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity. He relieves Captain G. T. Phelps at the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) in Hancock County.

Change of command ceremonies have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Sept. 25 in front of Building 1006, NORDA's new Ocean Science Center.

Captain Onorati grew up in New Jersey and went from Tenafly High School to the Naval Academy.

After his initial tour of duty on USS Charles S. Sperry, he attended Submarine School and subsequently served in USS Remora and USS Sterlet.

He then attended the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif., where he graduated in 1968 with a master of science degree in oceanography.

Onorati served in USS Wahoo and as executive officer of USS Dolphin.

He then attended Air Force Command and Staff College at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala., where he was a distinguished graduate.

During his year there, he earned a master of arts degree in business administration from Auburn University while attending night school.

Following a tour as executive officer of USS Gridley he served as commanding officer of USS Gray.

He then returned to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis for duty as battalion officer, and from there to the Naval Military Personnel Command, Washington, D.C., where he served first as head, Surface Ship Placement Branch, and then as deputy director,

Dogs and Letter Carriers

Dog bites are hardly a laughing matter.

Last year, 6,879 letter carriers were bitten by dogs. Many of those victims suffered disfigurements and either partial or permanent disabilities.

Over the years, the Postal Service has tried to combat dog attacks by arming its carriers with dog repellent and has even experimented with pop-out umbrellas to prevent dog attacks.

The service has also taken a tougher stance by interrupting mail delivery to homes where a dog is not properly restrained.

Additionally, the agency has been assisting—and joining—its employees in actions to recover damages resulting from dog attacks.

The Postal Service and its letter carriers wouldn't have to undergo the effort or the pain if dog owners realized one of the prime responsibilities of pet ownership is to keep the animal controlled.

Keep a pet on a leash or tether, in a fenced yard or even in the family home during normal hours of the carrier's delivery could all but eliminate the problem of dogs biting carriers.

This is such a simple solution, it's absurd that more homeowners haven't met their responsibility to both their pets and the people who deliver their mail.

Now, let's change the subject to what's going to happen next week at the Post Office.

First off, let me remind you that we now have a pretty fair assortment of the latest commemorative stamps on hand at the Bay St. Louis Post Office.

If the clerk at the window doesn't have what you want, please leave your name and phone number and we will try to get the stamps for you.

Next, we want to remind you that all post offices will be closed Monday, Sept. 3, for the Labor Day holiday.

However, we have been informed by the Social Security Administration that all SS checks should be delivered on Friday, Aug. 31.

Activity abounds at the Joe Morgan Farm near Brooklyn as representatives from various conservation agencies and organizations prepare for the Area VI Hold Our Topsoil Field Day set for 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Demonstrations will be given for practical soil conservation approaches on cropland, grassland, water, woodlands, and wildlife.

Everyone in the district is encouraged to attend the special day, which includes guided tours, exhibits, food, and a speech by Dr. Louis N. Wise, vice-president for agriculture, forestry, and veterinary medicine at Mississippi State University.

The field day is part of the state campaign Hold Our Topsoil (HOT) designed to make farmers and landowners more aware of effective soil conservation practices. Mississippi ranks number three in the nation in soil erosion.

TIMBERLINE

By David Watts
Hancock County Forester

Part two of a three part series: Factors affecting Market Value of Timber. Volume per acre is an important characteristic to a timber buyer because it is more economical to harvest a well-stocked stand than one in which the trees are scattered.

Total volume included in the sale is also very important because the time spent moving from one tract of timber to another is nonproductive time for the logger; he would prefer to cut larger tracts of timber and minimize his downtime for moving.

As a result, loggers insist on being paid more per unit volume to cut a small volume of timber than to cut a large volume.

And, having committed himself to paying more for the logging cost, the buyer has no choice but to offer a lower stumpage price in order to keep this total delivered price in line.

Timber quality can be a critical factor affecting stumpage prices. Solid wood products such as lumber and poles must be made from relatively straight tree with few knots, or the final product quality will be inferior.

Straightness is easily observed in standing trees, and the number and size of knots can be estimated fairly well by observing the number and diameter of branches. Defects such as fire scars, disease cankers, and hollow boles also reduce the stumpage value.

Hidden defects are more common and more difficult to detect in hardwoods than in pines, and as a result buyers tend to be very conservative when appraising hardwoods.

Tree age and the width of the growth rings are commonly assumed to affect wood quality; consequently, young trees which have grown very rapidly are often appraised at a lower value than older, slow-growing trees of the same size.

Logging costs are usually somewhat higher for salvage of windthrown trees, and such trees often have a good deal of breakage which reduces their value further.

The hauling distance to the mill or initial shipping point often has a large effect on stumpage prices. The logger must use more fuel and labor to transport timber 30 miles than to move the same timber 10 miles.

If he only has one truck and/or trailer, the additional distance will prevent him from cutting as much timber in a given period of time as he could have done if moving it the shorter distance. Thus greater hauling distances increase logging costs and decrease stumpage values.

Landowners probably do not consider access to the timber as being a major problem but the logger's equipment is much larger than the owner's personal truck.

Narrow, winding roads through timber which is not included in the sale area do not provide good access for a typical logging crew.

Often such roads must be widened by the logger in order to remove the timber which has been sold. In many cases, roads which are wide enough are not able to hold up under heavy loads of wood and must be constantly repaired by the logger.

And, of course, the landowner will expect the roads to be serviceable when the logging operation is completed. Thus a tract of timber which is readily accessible via all-weather roads is more valuable than a similar tract which will require substantial road work by the logger.

Another factor closely related to access is the actual ground conditions in the woods. Given a choice, buyers would prefer to purchase timber located on well-drained, level or gently sloping tracts with numerous rocks and thick brush. Wet tracts can only be logged during dry weather.

That can make it difficult to meet time limitations in the timber sale contract if seasonal dry weather does not occur when expected. Steep slopes, gullies, thick brush, and rocks can not only slow production but lead to equipment damage and personal injuries.

The existence of any of the above unfavorable conditions will cause the buyer to try to get a longer-term cutting contract with the landowner, especially if the timber is being paid for with a lump sum in advance.

If he is unable to get as long a lease as he would like, the stumpage price offered will be lowered somewhat to cover the risk of not being able to finish the logging on time.

Ordinarily the buyer will want at least 12 months to cut upland timber, and over 24 months to cut swamp timber, when it is purchased in a lump sum fashion.

Next week we'll conclude this series with a discussion of some additional factors that affect the market value of your timber.

Air Force to study contracts

The United States Air Force recently announced plans to study the potential conversion to contract operations of selected activities at various Air Force bases, including five activities at Keesler AFB.

These studies, officials say, will take place during the fiscal year 1985-1987 period.

Approximately 100 current military and civilian authorizations at the base could be involved should future studies indicate it is more cost effective to provide these base services under civilian contract.

Organizations to be studied at Keesler AFB, officials say, include the Commissary Warehouse, Commissary Shelf Stock and Custodial Services, Audiovisual Services, Postal Service Center and Transient Aircraft Maintenance.

Officials said studies comparing in-house versus contract costs will be conducted for each activity in conjunction with solicitation of bids.

Conversion to contract will take place if a detailed analysis shows the contractor can satisfactorily perform the function at a lower cost.

Officials said contracts from this process would begin in the FY 85 through FY 87 timeframe.

In certain cases, due to operational considerations and the need to keep contract administration costs as low as possible, the activities may be rearranged by system, by field command or by region, officials added.

This determination will be made on a case-by-case basis as part of the overall contracting strategy they said.

Keesler officials said they expect minimum impact on the local economy as a result of any changes resulting from these studies. Most of the workload being considered for conversion to contract will be accomplished locally, whether it is done in-house or by contract, they said.

Officials said that since FY 76 the United States Air Force has completed over 400 cost studies involving about 11,000 positions. Sixty-three percent of the activities studied went contract.

Officials point out that conversion to contract is not automatic. Regardless of the study outcome the Air Force and ultimately the taxpayer reap the benefits through more efficient in-house operations or contract operations at overall lower costs.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

Hancock County, Mississippi, is considering applying to the Governor's Office of Federal State Programs, Department of Planning and Policy, for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant of up to $500,000. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately 30 million dollars that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

1. To benefit low and moderate income persons; or
2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or
3. To meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, public facilities and services, and economic development. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements, and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at 6:00 p.m. Tuesday, September 4, 1984, in the Board of Supervisors meeting room in the Hancock County Courthouse, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

The purpose of this hearing will be to obtain citizen input into the development of the application.

Friendship Oak D.A.R.'s Thomas named to state museum committee

A continental-style breakfast hostess by Mrs. Philip R. Davenport and given in the home of Mrs. Nunez C. Pilet of Highland Drive in Bay St. Louis, announced the appointment of Mrs. James R. Thomas of Long Beach to the state office of museum docent. The appointment was made by Mrs. William E. O'Hare, state regent of the Mississippi State Society NSDAR.

Mrs. Thomas, whose home address is Long Beach, serves as vice regent of the Friendship Oak Chapter NSDAR. She is a native of Mississippi and grew up in the Jones County area of Ellisville. The DAR museum committee is the society's oldest committee, dating from Aug. 17, 1890. Its purpose is "to gather material for history, to preserve souvenirs of the Revolution, to study the manners and measures of those days, to devise the best methods of perpetuating the memories of our ancestors and celebrating their achievements."

Many people visit Washington each year to attend special museum events and enjoy viewing the treasures preserved there. The museum is open to the public free of charge and boasts an outstanding American decorative arts collection. The States period rooms a total of more than 50,000 objects. In 1973 the museum was accredited by the American Association of Museums.

A short executive meeting followed the breakfast at which time Mrs. Davenport distributed both state and national information, giving goals and job descriptions to each officer.

Mississippi Public Radio features classical music

The Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra's 1984 Broadcast Season is now airing on Wednesday nights at 8 p.m. on PRM, the eight-station public radio network under the Mississippi Public Authority for Educational Television.

For 13 weeks, Mississippians can tune in to an exciting variety of compositions by classical, romantic, and contemporary composers including Mozart, Handel, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Rossini, Franck, Rameau, Ravel, Shostakovich, Debussy and Tchaikovsky.

Under the musical direction of the widely-acclaimed composer and concert pianist Lukas Foss, the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra is one of the most widely-heard American orchestras with one of the largest broadcast networks of any U.S. orchestra.

"Because of the majority of our programming format is devoted to the classics, we are working with all producers of the major orchestras and symphonic ensembles throughout the country so that PRM listeners can have access to the different styles and tastes in performance programming," Director of Radio Linda Flentje said.

PRM frequencies include Biloxi, 90.3.

Triton, Bay Little Theatre sponsoring joint fund-raiser

The Krewe of Triton and the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre are jointly sponsoring production of a comedy by George Tibbles entitled "Never Get Smart With an Angel."

The play will be staged at the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre on Boardman Avenue Sept. 27, 28 and 29 and Oct. 4, 5 and 6.

A widower of seven years, Salvatore, played by Randolph Bourgeois, lives with his son, Paolo, played by Tim Bourgeois. Into this Italian ethnic world Paolo brings Dorothy, played by Lynn Stechmann, of "Wasp" descent.

Charles Carter stars in the role of Carmine, a fellow-immigrant friend of Salvatore.

World War II arrives and Paolo is drafted. He secretly marries Dorothy who becomes pregnant.

Edgar Perez plays the banker-father of Dorothy who is detested by Salvatore.

There are problems—there are tears and there is laughter. And then there's Salvatore's late wife, Lucia, played by Lady Carver, who comes to him in times of stress.

She's the far-from angelic angel of the title.

Don Ameche and Caesar Romero have starred as Salvatore. The Columbus Dispatch declared this play, "a winner all the way," Producer-director is Mike Hamm and guest-director is Mary Carter.

This play is a fund-raiser for the Krewe of Triton and the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. and tickets may be purchased for $6 at the following locations: in Bay St. Louis at the Pizza Hut and the Princess Dress Shoppe; in Waveland at the Unique Shop and Peterman's Lil-Super Food Mart and Package Liquor Stores; and in Diamondhead at L.L. Ltd. Fashions or by calling 255-1299.
